

Internship Program

MACRO
MUSEO D'ARTE CONTEMPORANEA ROMA

The Museum

MACRO is a home for the art, a place of meeting and discovery for everyone. Being the only museum of contemporary art with two exhibition spaces in Rome, MACRO has reopened with a new vocation: expanding the range of the museum activities orienting its perspectives towards the international. Diversifying means and resources, the museum will become a central point of reference for contemporary art in the country and all around the world.

*MACRO, Museo d'Arte Contemporanea Roma
The only contemporary art museum with a double identity:*

Via Reggio Emilia 54

For the past years, the galleries of MACRO have hosted numerous exhibitions of Italian and International artists, from Tom Wesselmann to Nicola De Maria, Ghada Amer to Tony Cragg, until the exhibition focus has been widened to the youngest generation with artists such as Avish Khebrehzadeh, Jenny Saville and Erwin Wurm.

The six galleries and the big hall houses the permanent collection, artists archives, great photography exhibitions and site specific projects.

MACRO Future

Testaccio

Located in the liveliest area of Rome, this redefined site of industrial architecture has been turned into a space for the performative arts (site specific installation, music, video).

The NEW MACRO

The exceptional project designed by the French architect Odile Decq will give to the NEW MACRO, an interrupted itinerary between inside and out, one which will culminate in the new terrace, animated night and day by sequences of moving images.

The Internship

The museum offers an internship program for university students worldwide who study art, art history or related areas and intend to take part in the development of the museum, to apply and gain practical experience of museology and familiarity with a collection of contemporary art.

The program offers the opportunity to live in a creative international atmosphere and to be acquainted with the life and culture of Rome.

What do interns do?

This internship program offers the wonderful and fulfilling opportunity of actually taking part to the creation of a new museum.

The museum offers three-month internships during which interns assist daily operations of the museum and are assigned to help staff in the offices (administration, communication, education, library, press, publications, registrar research, curator research) in order to get a 360° vision of the museum activities. Projects with the staff are assigned according to one's specific skills and profile, and depend on the museum activities program.

In addition to gaining professional experience, interns are offered a series of formative activities so as to keep on developing their training. Several times a month, interns meet for seminars conducted by staff members or visiting professionals (artists and curators). From September 2009, visits of other museums in Rome will be organised.
